Tennessee seeks drug testing for all schools

(CPS)—Even as some athletes began suing to stop having to take drug tests, a Tennessee state legislator has introduced a bill that would require anyone who wants to attend one of the state's colleges to be tested for drugs.

The idea isn't very popular at the University of Tennessee.

"The law hasn't passed," said Don Eastman, assistant to the chancellor at UT, "and we'd certainly resist it if it did."

"Basically," added Hedy Weinberg of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) in Nashville, "it treats the innocent and guilty alike. It's patently unconstitutional because it doesn't ask for 'probable cause.'"

"Probable cause" is the legal doctrine that authorities can't interfere in citizens' lives with warrant or searches unless there is reason to suspect the citizens are guilty of something.

Tennessee Senator Bill Richardson, who introduced the bill which would bar applicants who tested positive for drugs from attending any of the states twenty-four public campuses, doesn't agree it has any real constitutional problems.

His bill, he said, "places the fear of detection out before" young people, and thus could convince them not to use drugs.

"I don't like singling out athletes," Richardson said. The fairest law, he added, would "cover everyone and not single out any one group."

Duke University, in North Carolina, is the only other campus in the country which has considered the idea of testing all students.

There a faculty committee quickly rejected the idea, judging drug abuse was not rampant enough among non-athletes as among athletes.

On other campuses, athletes are resisting drug tests more frequently.

Athletes at Stanford (California), Colorado, and Northeastern (Boston) universities have gone to court to try to halt drug testing.

"The testing of student athletes without probable cause for suspicion is an outrageous violation of privacy rights guaranteed by state and federal laws," said ACLU attorney David Miller.

OHIO BRIEFS

(DAYTON)—A Montgomery County judge has found that the company involved in the Miamisburg train derailment has not been pressuring residents to settle claims. Judge John Kessler ruled yesterday against issuing an injunction against C-S-X Transportation Incorporated. Kessler said confusion over claims arising from the Miamisburg disaster has underscored the need to determine whether residents will be represented in a class action law suit, and he called on attorneys to submit timetables to get the certification process underway.

(COLUMBUS)—A Nelsonville woman has filed a class action suit in federal court in Columbus asking that sexual harassment be eliminated from the Ohio Department of Transportation. Teresa Burnette said she was harassed while she worked at the State Highway Garage in Athens, and the harassment continued after she transferred to the Marietta Office. Burnette said her tormentor received only a 30-day suspension.

WORLD BRIEFS

A Marine guard accused of allowing Soviet agents into the U.S. embassy in Moscow entered a military hospital yesterday. A spokesman said Sergeant Clayton Longtree will undergo tests into what is termed his "mental capacity or responsibility." The spokesman denied reports that Longtree had attempted suicide. He faces a court-martial on multiple spying charges.

Faculty salaries are divisive issue

(CPS)—Faculty salaries last year continued a five year upward trend, but women still trail men in both rank and pay, according to an Education Department study.

The average faculty member earned 6.4% more in 1985-86 than in the previous year.

Women faculty, however, still earn about 25% less than their male counterparts, the study shows, with more women occupying lower ranking jobs such as lecturer or instructor.

Nearly 88% of all full professors are men, and more than 80% of the male faculty are professors, associate professors or assistant professors, according to the study.

"We see no evidence that the gap (between men and women) is closing," reported Iris Molotsky of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), which will soon issue its own study.

"Our data also will show that salaries are increasing still, but not as much as the Education Department figures show," she adds. "The increases are beginning to level out."

Molotsky explained that, while the Education Department studied faculty salaries for '85-86, more recent AAUP figures reveal the '86-87 salaries could indicate a slowdown.

Despite the Department of Education's report, faculty pay hikes continue to be a divisive issue on many campuses.

Basketball Browns treat fans of all ages to a real ball

By KAREN SMITH

Features/Entertainment Editor

I'd never seen so much brown and orange in one place in my life.

On Friday, March 27, hundreds of "Brownies" flooded Stebbins High School to watch a group of their Cleveland Browns take on the Dayton Area Police All-Stars. Cleveland fans from nine months to ninety years old came from near and far to see the NFL Central Division champs try their luck at basketball.

The exhibition game, which resulted in a 112-97 win for the Cleveland crew, was arranged to raise money for the Dayton Police Officers general fund, and the public showed tremendous support. However, the main attraction may not have been Officer Flickinger. My guess is the star of the show was defensive end Sam Clancy.

Hardly the most svelte of the "Basketball Dawgs", Clancy showed his size could be used for more than just mauling quarterbacks. His rendition of the slam dunk was a sight to behold, and there were very few of Dayton's finest who dared to step in his way.

Another stand-out for the Browns was wide receiver Clarence Weathers. Although Weathers had a struggle with his attempts at slam dunking, he did manage to display his agility and finesse with a number of dazzling plays. Look out, Magic Johnson!

The real story behind the game wasn't even basketball, though. The story was in the eyes of the young fans—the kids in every variety of Browns attire—who came to see their heroes.

Most of these kids were the offspring of a Cleveland-loving parent, more often than not a father with a passion for football played "like only the Browns can play it." They donned their Browns shirts, jackets and hats, grabbed their pennants and charged the gym with dreams of meeting their football idols.

Swimmers float to top at Division II championships

By BRYAN ELLIS
Associate Writer

Prior to spring break, the Wright State men's and women's swim teams made the other NCAA Division II swimming powerhouses sit up and take notice at the 1987 NCAA Division II Swimming and Diving Championships at Long Beach, California.

The Raiders were led by Junior Scott Troutwine, who swam his way to the 500-yard freestyle national championship with an impressive time of 4:29.54, a new school record, and over two seconds ahead of his closest competitor.

As a team, the Raiders recorded 16 finishes that earned WSU men and women All-American honors, 11 times that earned honorable mention All-American honors and fourth and seventh place finishes for the men's and women's teams, respectively.

Wednesday's action saw Troutwine win his national championship to highlight the first big day of action.

Rick Hayhow, finishing his swimming career at WSU, started out with finishing as national runner-up in the 50-yard freestyle to earn All-American honors. He also set a new school record time of 20.66 seconds to make a final mark in the WSU record books.

Chris Deiter, Karen Kimpton, Barb Hojnacki and the women's 200-yard medley relay team also earned honorable mention All-American honors on Wednesday.

Thursday's action saw the All-American honors touch Doug Kellerstrass, Annika Borg and the men's 800-yard freestyle relay team of Troutwine, Joe Boda, Hayhow and Brad Carpenter. Kellerstrass earned All-American by placing sixth in the 100-yard backstroke final and setting a school record time of 52.76 seconds along the way. Borg narrowly missed becoming the national champion in the 100-yard breaststroke, finishing as national runner-up with a time of 1:06.81. The freestyle men's relay team placed fourth to win their All-American honors. Karen Kimpton and the women's 800-yard freestyle relay team of Kimpton, Barb Hojnacki, Borg and Kim Wilkinson also won honorable mention All-American honors in Thursday's action.

Friday's championship events were highlighted by seven All-American finishes by Raider swimmers.

On the men's side, Troutwine earned his second All-American award with a fifth place finish in the men's 200-yard freestyle event. Seniors Joe Boda and J.R. Geraci won All-American honors in the 100-yard freestyle butterfly and one-meter diving event, respectively, to cap off sensational swimming careers at Wright State. Both the men's and women's 400-yard medley relay teams also won All-American honors to boost the Raider effort on Friday.

Finally, on the women's side of the pool, Karen Kimpton won All-American honors in the 400-yard individual medley, as did the women's 200-yard freestyle relay team of Mistie Mosser, Ann Niemeyer, Wilkinson and Barb Hojnacki to conclude the highlights of Friday's action.

Golfers driving toward success

By BRYAN ELLIS
Associate Writer

During spring break, the Wright State Raider golf team's season swung successfully into high gear, as the Raider linksters played well in both of the golf classics that they took part in.

In their initial golfing action of this season, the Raiders came away pleased with an 11th-place finish in the 22-team field at the James Madison Spring Invitational at the Calvern Country Club in Luray, Va. on March 13-14. The linksters were equally pleased with their 12th-place finish in the Jaguar Classic at the Augusta College Jones' Creek Golf Course in Augusta, Ga. on March 23-24.

Leading Raiders at the James Madison tournament was freshman Jason Hadden. Hadden drove and putted his way to a nine-over-par 81 on the first 18 holes of the competition, and then he combined that with a 10-over-par 82 in the final 18 the next day for a total of 19-over, 163. Right behind Hadden was junior teammate Sean Ryan, who shot a 20-over 164 for the tournament. Ryan recovered

BANNED BOOKS

DID YOU KNOW THAT THE FOLLOWING BOOKS
HAVE BEEN BANNED FROM YOUR LIBRARY
BY THE UNIVERSITY HISTORY DEPARTMENT?

- |   |            |
|---|------------|
| THE HOAX OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY Hb. $15.95—Pb. $9.95by Arthur R. Butz Ph.D. |            |

| THE GREAT HOLOCAUST TRIALby Michael A. Hoffman II                               | Pb. $5.95 |

The above books were offered free to the Wright State University Library, which rejected them on the advice of one person, outright and without reason. Authors Dr. A.R. Butz, Dr. Walter Sanning, and Dr. Robert Faurisson are current or former professors teaching at major U.S. and European universities, while Michael Hoffman II is a former reporter for the Associated Press. Whereas the library is virtually teeming with books on the "Holocaust" by orthodox writers, the above four represent but a small sample of scholars whose studies have arrived at widely different and controversial perspectives. Why are the library and History Department afraid to allow divergent viewpoints on this subject? Shouldn't a university give students access to all sides of an issue? If you feel you have this right and are interested in pursuing knowledge against the conventional wisdoms of our day, we invite you to write for one or more of the above books from:

Browns

And many of them fulfilled that dream. The Browns took time out during halftime as well as following the game to meet their fans and sign more autographs than they ever imagined. The kids stared with adoration at Clancy as he scrawled his name and jersey number on yet another program, and Hanford Dixon autographed a small boy's t-shirt.

Not all the autograph seekers were still in grade school, however. A few of the adoring fans were a little closer to retirement age. Though there was a dramatic difference in years, there didn't seem to be much of a generation gap. The common ground, the love of Browns football, brought all ages together.

The most charming, Norman Rockwell-portrait-worthy sight of the evening was: A young father, wearing a Bernie Kosar jersey, holding a son barely old enough to be out of the crib.

The child sported a brown sweater, orange stripes down the side, and a familiar orange football helmet on the chest. On his tiny head was a Browns cap, which was tipped at just enough of an angle to show his sleeping face. A true fan.

Swimmers

The Raider men and women's swim teams concluded with a big finish.

Hayhow barely missed a championship in the 100-yard freestyle, finishing second, recording All-American honors and setting a school record time of 45.12 seconds all in one event. Hayhow's fellow senior teammate, Geraci, concluded his career by recording his second All-American honors in the three-meter diving event. Borg also finished the season on a high note, recording her second All-American honor in the 200-yard breaststroke event. Kimpton joined the others as a two-time All-American with a fifth place finish in the 200-yard backstroke event.

Finally, freshman Deiter and Brad Carpenter won All-American honors in the 200-yard breaststroke and 1650-yard freestyle events, respectively.

The men finished in fourth place in the team standings behind Champion Cal. State-Bakersfield, while the women finished seventh behind champion Cal. State-Northridge.

This brings to a close a very exciting and competitive season of swimming action.

from an opening round 85 to score a 79 over the final 18.

Also finishing well for the Raiders were Jay Mullett and Matt Sharkey each with 165's, while Bill Shade brought up the rear with a 166.

Team scores for the Raiders were 654 in the Madison tourney, placing them 32 strokes off the winning pace of East Tennessee State. The Raiders shot 662 at the Jaguar Classic, putting them 40 shots behind the tournament winner Northwestern.

The Raiders look to continue their success at the upcoming SIU-Edwardsville Invitational on April 3-4.
